It is vital to see the whole child, not just the disability or illness.

The term ‘disability’ refers to a wide range of conditions that in some way limit people’s ability to manage everyday living. Different disabilities are often grouped in categories such as intellectual disabilities, learning disabilities, sensory and speech disabilities, acquired brain injury or physical disabilities. Having a disability places limits on the things that children can do. It may restrict them from participating in some activities that their classmates do. It is vital to see the whole child, not just the disability or illness. It is also important to offer support for what children with additional needs can do, so as to reduce restrictions on their participation and maximise their opportunities for success. This approach helps to build self-confidence and motivation for trying new things. It promotes ways of valuing and including all children.

Act of Kindness: Chelsea S (3A)
Congratulations to Chelsea S who received the Act of Kindness award this week. Chelsea received the award for returning a hearing aide and always being a kind friend.

House meetings
Tomorrow, Period 7 all children will have House Meetings. At this meeting, children will be asked for any ideas/activities for InSPIRE. I look forward to seeking ideas from the students.

National Buddy Day
National Buddy Day is an initiative developed by NAB and The Alannah and Madeline Foundation to celebrate friendship and help raise awareness of bullying in Australian primary schools. By ‘Banding Together’ to raise funds, we will be helping to support The Alannah and Madeline Foundation in their bid to reduce bullying and create friendly and caring school communities. All money raised will go towards introducing the Foundation’s Better Buddies Framework into more primary schools across the country. The Alannah and Madeline Foundation is a national charity protecting children from violence and bullying and its devastating impacts.

Since 2007, the number of participating Better Buddies schools has increased from 30, to over 1,700 in 2015.

We are Banding Together on Wednesday 15th June to celebrate National Buddy Day and take a stand against bullying.

When we ‘Banding Together’, Patto will raise awareness and funds to support The Alannah and Madeline Foundation in their bid to reduce bullying, and create friendly and caring school communities through the Better Buddies program.

Buddy grades will be joining forces and participating in a fun activity together. Students are asked to wear a splash of purple and bring a gold coin donation.

Winter Health – Beating the Bugs

In Australia, our influenza 'flu' season typically runs from May to October, usually peaking in August.

It is just not possible to stop all bugs from spreading at school, however, a lot of illnesses can be prevented and controlled simply by practicing good hygiene.

Handy hygiene tips for you and your family

- Cover your mouth and nose with a tissue when coughing or sneezing
- Throw used tissues in plastic-lined rubbish bins
- Wash your hands with soap and water, preferably warm water if available
- Reduce the spread of germs by avoiding touching your eyes, nose and mouth

What can you do to prevent the spread of infectious diseases?

The three main ways of preventing the spread of infection are:

1. Remind your child of effective hygiene methods.

2. Keep your child home when they are unwell. Your doctor will let you know if your child has an 'excludable' condition. You will need to advise the school as soon as possible and keep your child home for the length of time that your doctor advises.

3. Ensure your child's immunisations are up to date.
Raising Mighty Boys
Understanding what makes boys tick helps to make parenting easier for the males in your life.

Boys just want to fit in

Boys under the age of ten can be challenging for parents. It's behaviour, poor self-confidence and learning issues that keep parents of boys in this age group busy.

The straightforward nature of adolescent boys makes them easier and less complicated to raise, compared to teenage girls so the pressure eases. However, personal relationships, school-life and being organised present challenges for teenage boys.

Sometimes mothers I meet in parenting seminars get flummoxed by the in your face, direct nature of their sons. Loveable yes, but they can be hard work as well. It helps to appreciate what makes boys tick.

They are wired for activity
It seems boys' brains were designed by a different architect than girls. While girls develop verbal, social and fine motor skills quite naturally boys are wired to be more active, boisterous, competitive and territorial, which is one of the reasons why parents are usually kept busy raising boys in the early years.

They are slower matures
The maturity gap between boys and girls of anywhere between 12 months and two years, seems to be consistent all the way to adulthood. Parents should take this into account when deciding the school starting age of their sons. This maturity gap is also evident when kids finish school and move into tertiary studies or the workplace. Girls are often better placed to succeed, and many boys get lost once they leave school.

They want approval
Most boys ache for approval from their parents, their fathers in particular. Wanting the best for their boys some dads can be too hard on their sons. Better to foster a strong relationship than drive them too hard. Some boys like to talk; others like to share an activity; while others are kinaesthetic and love to be touched, cuddled and hugged.

Make sure you match your relational style with theirs so that you can get on the same wavelength.

They want to blend in
Boys just want to fit in. They are group-oriented by nature and tend to be very loyal to their friends. As a rule, they don't like to stand out from the crowd so they respond best to private praise and won't respect you if you embarrass them in front of their friends.

They need a disciplined approach
Boys usually like limits and boundaries. They make them feel safe and secure. They also like to know that a parent will enforce the house rules, so don't be afraid to be firm, although you don't have to use the same authoritarian methods as parents in the past may have used. Firm, fair and consistent are the keys to effective discipline for boys.

They are pragmatic learners
Boys need a reason to learn. If you are having difficulty motivating your son then try linking learning to their interests. They may play a musical instrument when they know they can play in a band or practise their kicking if they can see it will help kick more goals. If they love skateboarding the chances are they want to know more about it, so use this as a lever to motivate them if reading is a problem.

They are single-minded
Boys have a specialist brain, which tends to be logical and rational. They don't have the same connections between the right and left side of the brain that girls have. This can be a hindrance particularly when careful communication is needed, or multiple viewpoints need to be considered. That's why parents often have to coach boys of all ages in the finer points of communicating. However, it's an advantage as it can help them focus hard on tasks, make quick decisions and get to the point when needed.

There is no doubt that raising boys can be a challenge for many parents. Those who do best understand and appreciate how they think, feel and behave and adjust their parenting accordingly. And they feel comfortable in their company as well.
